

MAINTAINING EQUILIBRIUM IN OUR TUMULTUOUS TIME

We humans think we experience what is happening in the world and respond to it. But for the vast majority of us, we are actually responding to our own inner landscape. That is why one person can love peach ice cream while another can't stand it. They have both tasted the same ice cream! So imagine if you apply this to more significant events. You can begin to shift your experience of the world. This workshop will give you tools you can use to begin the process of seeing the world as it is so you are not tossed about by the waves. Another way to say this is you will learn to make lemonade from life's lemons. You must plan to attend all 4 sessions—they build on each other.
