

Acquiring the Pathwork lectures

(Updated June 2016)

There are two editions of the lectures: the Unedited & the 1996 Edition. In my opinion, the difference between the two versions is that the Unedited maintains more of the flavor and energy of the original lecture as presented, but can sometimes be more difficult to read while the 1996 Edition is more readable but reflects the editor's understanding of the lectures. Personally, I prefer reading the original even though it sometimes takes a little more effort, and when I became a Helper, all of the teachers and Helpers I knew preferred them as well.

The International Pathwork Foundation, which has custody of the lectures, has posted the 1996 edited edition on their website for free reading and download. But they have made the Unedited available only for purchase in one of two ways:

- ◆ Subscription. When last I checked in June 2016, you could subscribe for $60/yr which entitles you to unlimited access.

- ◆ Buy the CD for $30 (technically $29.95). If you purchase the CD, which includes both versions as well as some material not available on the website, you can easily search one or both versions of the lectures.

I have made it even easier and quicker for myself by putting the lectures on my computer so I don't need the CD to access them. I would encourage you to buy the CD—for access to the Unedited lectures and additional materials.

To access the lectures, go to <http://pathwork.org/the-lectures/>. When last I viewed the website, the unedited lectures were a link in the side bar. Below the links to the unedited and translated editions, there are opportunities to access the lectures by number or by topic. Those take you to the 1996 Edited edition. If you have questions about why the 1996 edition is available for free, but not the original, please address them to the foundation. If you would like to discuss the difference in the versions or have any other questions about Pathwork or your journey, you are welcome to contact me.
